Highlighting Your Library

Pat Thibodeau, Associate Dean for Library Services

Welcome to our new and returning faculty, staff, and students! As the new academic year begins, I want to highlight some of the recent changes at our Library.

E-Journals Rule – Electronic journals have long been the preferred format due to their ease of use from any Duke location. In an attempt to stretch our budget dollars, we have canceled as many paper copies as possible. While you may be dismayed at the small number of titles on the current journal shelves, you will find a good selection of journals on our e-journal Web page at <http://www.mclibrary.duke.edu/respub/collections/ejrnl.html>.

Food and Beverage Policy – Our experiment to allow food and covered drinks has been successful, and we are expanding the food and beverage area to include the entire main entrance level and lower lobby. However, food and beverages are not allowed on the stack levels, in the History of Medicine Reading Room, or in the electronic classroom (MLEC). And yes, we are investigating the possibility of a real café with coffee and snacks!

New Online Catalog and Research Tools – Aleph, the new integrated library system, is being implemented as this issue goes to press. The advertisement on page 2 gives some details about the new functions, features, and powerful research tools.

Almost a Table-of-Contents Service – For those who have used the old Current Contents publications, the National Library of Medicine has produced a Journal Abstract Browser that provides a table of contents for selected medical journals using PubMed. Visit <http://www.mclibrary.duke.edu/limited/journalbrowser.html> to try it out.

The Virtual Library – Journals are not the only electronic resources we have. Be sure to visit our Website for links to databases, e-books, and Internet sites on various topics. We can also deliver journal articles to your desktop. For more information, connect to <http://illiad.mclibrary.duke.edu/ElectronicDeliveryInformation.html>.

Virtual Newsletter – We are moving away from paper for our own Library newsletter too. This is the last print issue, so be sure to sign up for the email list announcing new electronic issues as they are produced. Past and current issues will be available on our Website at <http://www.mclibrary.duke.edu/about/news/>.

The Not-So Virtual Library – We still have a great physical library facility! We hope you will continue to come and work with our expert staff, gather for group studying, and use our older paper materials.

The Striped Carpeting is Gone! – We now have new carpeting throughout the Library. Visual distortions and dizziness caused by whizzing across the striped carpeting in the stacks are things of the past. Many thanks to all of you who suffered through the chaos and mess in June, as installers moved each fully loaded stack at least twice. It was quite a sight to see the stacks rumbling across the floors.

Introducing Megan von Isenburg

Maurice Reece, Access Services

In July Megan von Isenburg became the newest member of the Medical Center Library professional staff, only a few weeks after receiving her Masters in Library Science degree from the University of North Carolina (UNC) at Chapel Hill. The career path that has led her to our library has been guided by an interest in journalism, the media, and in the different ways information is presented.

Megan earned her B.A. degree in American Studies from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1997, where she was a Herbert Worth Jackson Scholar, and a member of the Honors Program and Phi Beta Kappa. In 1995, she spent the Fall semester studying Italian art and language at the Lorenzo de Medici Institute in Florence, Italy.

Her undergraduate studies at UNC used an interdisciplinary approach to American culture and history and led her to a two-year stint with the National Paideia Center in Chapel Hill and Greensboro. Enabling students to see themselves as life-long learners was a focus of the Center, which Megan says helped her in developing her own philosophy of educational techniques and approaches.

After spending almost two years in New York conducting marketing and research projects for National Public Broadcasting and Bookspan (formerly Book-of-the-Month Club), Megan realized her interests lay more with using information than with the business aspect of publishing. While in library school, she worked as a intern at the Environmental Protection Agency library in Research Triangle Park, where she received her first professional exposure to the field of scientific research.

Megan's personal interests include art, photography, travel, vegetable gardening, and her pets. This summer she also paid a return visit to Italy, almost ten years after her semester there as a student.

Book Drop Locations and Schedules

The main book drop slot for the Medical Center Library is located near the main lobby entrance. A 24-hour book drop is located near one of the entrance doors of the Library on the walkway between the South Clinics and Duke Hospital North. Materials deposited in the 24-hour book drop are picked up three or more times each day.

Duke South Clinics: Green Zone, Davison Building, Basement level underneath the stairway to the First Floor.
Pickup: Monday through Friday at 9:30 a.m.

Duke Hospital North: PRT Lobby, Lower Level near the walkway to Parking Garage II.
Pickup: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday ONLY at 9:30 a.m.

Sands Building: Sands Building, on the Jones Building side near the rear exit door.
Pickup: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday ONLY at 9:30 a.m.

To avoid overdue fines, please pay particular attention to the pickup schedules, or return all journals, books, and interlibrary loan items directly to the Library. Audiovisuals should be returned to the Library Service Desk to avoid damaging them.

In Memoriam: Warren P. Bird, 1933-2004

Warren Bird, former Director of the Medical Center Library, died in Durham on July 13 after a lengthy illness. He was 70 years old. After receiving his undergraduate degree in 1956 from Georgetown University, Warren attended Duke's School of Medicine from 1956-1958. He worked for several years as a radiological physicist at Columbia before earning his Master of Science in Library Science from that institution in 1964.

Warren returned to Duke in 1965 as Systems Analyst in the Medical Center Library. In 1968, he was appointed Associate Director, also serving as chief of Library Systems and Communications. In 1974, he became the Director, a post he held until his retirement in 1991. He was an Associate Professor of Medical Literature in the School of Medicine, and he also taught several courses in the graduate library school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

An active member of a number of library, scientific and bibliographic associations, Warren presented many lectures and workshops, served as a consultant on several library construction and renovation projects, and published several papers on library planning and communication. He worked closely with the architects to plan and design the present Library facility which opened in 1975.

Among his many hobbies and interests, Warren was a longtime classical music enthusiast and a supporter of the nonprofit classical radio station WCPE. Contributions in his memory may be made to WCPE, Box 897, Wake Forest, NC 27588.

Help Us Keep Our Exhibits Safe

Food and drink are now allowed on the lower lobby level of the Library. However, we are asking our patrons to help us keep our exhibits safe by not placing anything on top of the display cases. Not only will objects set off the security alarms, but spills could also damage our valuable, and in some cases irreplaceable, materials that we want to share with you.

For those who wish to use our rare collections, the History of Medicine Reading Room will remain a food and beverage-free area.
